JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

"Two Girls and a Ghost"

Judy Zimmerman	Polly Peters
Dave Whitfield	Marty Peters
Linda Copple	Nancy Dean
Becky McCorkle	Mrs. Beatrice Peters
Kim Lafuse	Mr. William Peters
Kathy Smith	Sue, The Maid
Janet Mummert	First Linda
Rhonda Reddick	Second Linda
Tom Stevens	Mr. Lambert
Chuck Cruse	The Ghost

Teen-agers Polly Peters and her brother Marty are the chasers of the ghost. It all starts when Polly, who has ambitions to be an opera singer, confides to Marty and next-door neighbor, Nancy Dean, that a New York theatrical agent is coming that night to hear her sing. Unfortunately, in her letter to him, she "exaggerated." In fact, she told him she was a glamorous twenty-year old and lived with a famous vocal teacher. To keep her parents from discovering her predicament, she has convinced them that they should drive to a distant city to pick up Cousin Linda who is coming for a visit. Once they are safely out of the house, she is sure she can convince Marty to pose as her vocal teacher and keep the theatrical agent from learning the truth until he has heard her sing. Marty naturally objects to the plan. In the midst of his objections the doorbell rings. It's Cousin Linda, who didn't know she was to be picked up and came on the train.

Cousin Linda, an orphan, is not alone. She has brought along her--ghost! We soon learn that is the reason why she wanted to get away from her lonely, forty-room mansion. It's haunted. She was sure her ghost would stay home, but it moves in with her and weird happenings soon have the Peters' household in an uproar. Polly's theatrical agent arrives despite the uninvited ghost. Marty's impersonation of a vocal teacher is funny enough to make even a ghost laugh. Since it's late, the agent is invited to stay for the night. There are disappearances and visits from the ghost until Polly, Marty, and friend Nancy enlist Linda's aid to capture the troublesome spirit and his accomplice, the fake theatrical agent.

Rhonda Reddick and Foster Wilson were chosen two of the four Rush County Co-op representatives this past summer. The Co-op Conference was held on the Purdue University Campus. They learned about the American Private Enterprise System and how their own county co-op can help the public.

REPRESENTATIVES TO SUMMER TRIPS

Representatives to Girls' and Boys' State this past summer were Becky McCorkle and Kim Lafuse.

Their weeks' activities consisted in the study of government functions and taking part in local, county, and state elections.

Some of the guest speakers were Reverend Stewart, past National Oratory Contest Winner, and at Girls' State the 1967 Boys' State Governor.

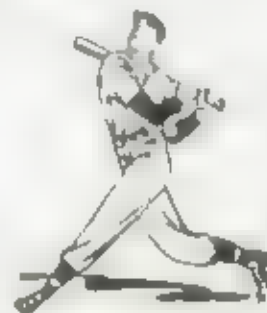

SUMMER BASEBALL

Record: 10 wins, 4 losses

The team was led in hitting by Mike Matlock, senior right fielder, who hit 353. Kim Lafuse, Warren Nigh, and Dan Edwards handled the pitching duties. Lafuse won 5 games (1 a 10 inning no-hitter against Morton Memorial) to lead the pitching staff.

The team's strong points were fine defensive plays and the ability to come up with clutch hits. Of eight one-run games they were involved in, they won 7.

SUMMER DRIVERS' EDUCATION CLASS

At the left is the summer drivers' education class with their instructor, Mr. King. They learned highway laws as well as the manipulation of the vehicle.

The picture at the right is an example set for young drivers by local police.

The band presented their marching show based on these tunes at the Shelby County Fair, the Lewisville Festival, the Coney Island Parade, the Knightstown Jubilee Days, and the Farmers' Day Parade at the Indiana State Fair.

SUMMER BAND ACTIVITIES

Our majorettes annually visit the Smith-Walbridge Camp for training in twirling and in routines. Needless to say, there is also time for swimming, fun, and sunbathing at a summer camp like this.

EXPERIMENT NUMBER 1968
SUBJECT: A class of "super-humans"
OBJECT: To change, through training a normal class of first grade pupils into the most intelligent and physically fit "super-humans" the world has ever produced.
EXPERIMENTER: S.O. Wrong

The first step in my experiment was to find the appropriate class of students. This was by no means an easy task and required a full year of research. Since I needed first grade students for my experiment, I began my research by visiting various kindergartens all over the nation. I discarded millions, indeed billions of schools, before I found the right ones for my needs. Then at the end of the 1955-56 school year I found not only the perfect specimen for my experiment, but also the perfect environment in which to conduct it. I unearthed my specimen in the somewhat quaint Little town of Carthage, Indiana.

The exact scene of the excavation was in the kindergarten room of the Carthage High School (hereafter referred to as C.H.S.). A class of about fifty kindergarteners was under the able direction of Mrs. Flick. Thanks to her patience, my experiment already had a firm foundation on which I could build.

During the summer vacation I began my experiment by carefully eliminating and adding students, until I had fifty-six whom I considered the best suited. The class now contained an element of each type; however, I was careful not to include too many of either great intellect or great physique. Thus, my experiment was on its way with the following members enrolled: Billy Back, Tom Blessinger, Betty Burnell, Jim Carroll, Linda Copple, Dale DeWitt, Regina DeWitt, Mike Dye, Leroy Finch, Janet Goodwin, Rita Johnson, Kim Lafuse, Bruce Lord, Mike Matlock, Barry Paugh, Mary Jane Pope, Lynn Ray, John Rhodes, Jim Richmond, Marjorie Rumble, Terry Shuck, Edwin Shockney, Kathy Smith, Steve Springman, Margery Stark, Tom Stevens, Nancy Strahle, John White, Dave Whitfield, Della Wiggins, Foster Wilson, Judy Zimmerman, Tom Whitfield, Joseph Knott, Larry Jenkins, Earle Barry, Marsha Brandt, Phil Campbell, Tressie Clay, Shirley Deboard, Steve Donoho, Jim Edwards, George Finch, Ramona Gorman, Jim Grizzell, Linda Howard, Malcolm McClurg, Drenda Mourey, Tom Pearson, Alva Porter, Rhonda Reddick, Barbara Schneider, Deryl Souder, Robert Stevens, Donna Basham, and Gary Jenkins.

In the fall of 1956 I began the first year of an experiment which took me twelve years to complete. During this time, many of the original fifty-six withdrew from the experiment for various reasons; many were replaced. During the first year of the experiment I was fortunate to have as my assistants Mrs. Nugent and Mrs. Cox, C.H.S.'s first grade teachers. During this year they learned how two plus two gives four and the basic fundamentals of school life. Toward the end of the first year I began to notice a certain amount of defiance among the class members which was to be noted with apprehension on my part, throughout the experiment.

The second year of my experiment was under way with the assistance of Mrs. Nugent and Mrs. Cox. The year progressed normally with the slight exception of a train trip from Greensburg to Indianapolis. The class was thrilled by this unexpected exception to the plan of my experiment, so I suppose the trip was useful for morale purposes. The third year passed with little or no problems; and for the first time since the beginning of the experiment, my hopes began to rise. I am forced to admit that most of the credit goes to Mrs. Hedrick and Mrs. Alexander who were the third grade teachers.

In the fourth year of my experiment I met with an unforeseen problem--discipline. David Whitfield started the whole matter when he hit Sharon Smith in the head with an eraser. What made matters worse, David was the teacher's "pet." With this grand start the discipline problem grew worse. I would never have been able to carry on my work without the help of Mrs. Mary Ruby and Mrs. Pearson.

In the fifth and sixth year the boys turned their attention toward basketball and the girls toward cheerleading. This turn of events somewhat inspired me to continue, at least in my hope, to produce a class of great athletes. It was also in the sixth year that my students began going steady, exchanging Cracker Jack rings instead of class rings. The sixth year ended with a partial victory for me. My class challenged the fourth and fifth grades to a track meet. The overwhelming defeat of the fourth and fifth grades surprised many of my critics. This was the first proof that the experiment had value and that it was working. Their enjoyment of athletic endeavor was proven on their class picnic. The students received my praise for their swimming ability, but the teachers and parents took a dim view of the students swimming in the creek fully dressed.

As the sixth year ended, I thanked Mrs. Helen Ruby, Mrs. Mary Ruby, and Miss Carfield for their help during the fifth and sixth years. Thus the first half of my experiment came to an end. The preliminary tests and training had not been as successful as I had hoped. Indeed, if I should be completely honest, I still did not have a class of super-humans, merely an average class of sixth grade students. However, a true scientist never gives up hope; besides my experiment still had six years to go.

With renewed determination I began the seventh year of experimentation. This year I employed different, more highly trained teachers for each subject in the hope that at least some of them could get through to the students. I was fortunate to have as my somewhat unwilling assistant Mr. Eugene Gardner, who acted as class sponsor. This year was spent in the pursuit of knowledge, at least by Mr. Gardner and myself. After an uneventful year, as far as my scientific goal was concerned, I pressed on into the next year.

During the eighth year my students achieved a small degree of maturity. Boys and girls were no longer repulsive, at least to each other. At least part of my experiment was proceeding according to plan. The Junior High basketball team won the Rush County Tourney. However, I was still not satisfied with the scholastic achievement of my students. For this reason I decided to divide them into different fields of study for the remainder of the experiment.

With the start of the ninth year the students entered the awesome world of high school. Some pupils followed the academic program; others, the commercial program; while still others followed a yet undefined program. This year many became involved in social or extracurricular activities. These included B-team basketball, baseball, track, cheerleading, chorus, band, and class offices and activities. The award for scholastic endeavor, the Freshman Cup, went to Jim Edwards.

The last three years of experimentation composed the most important and the final phase of my work. During this time, I, with the help of Mr. Gardner and the C.H.S. staff, tried to prepare the group to assume responsible positions in the adult world. My students seriously undertook their school work striving to meet college requirements or to prepare themselves for their life's work. However, life was not all work and no play. My students had ample time for parties, sports, class suppers, dances, fall festivals, and their many other varied interests. Some of the more memorable events were the ordering of class rings, the Junior-Senior prom, Senior keys, working on the yearbook, and the class trip.

On this May 20, 1968, as I sat watching the graduation ceremonies, I remember the past twelve years with pride and contentment. However, I am forced to admit that this is not a class of super-humans; they are neither physically nor mentally superior to all others. You might think that I am admitting that my experiment was a failure; I am not. Now I realize that instead of a class of super-humans, I have a class of young Americans. The future belongs not to old doctors like me, but to young people like them.

The younger students are shown here studying the art of readin', writin', and 'rithmetic. Much of their learning results from group activities like those pictured here.

Throughout the grade school building are many beautiful and practical displays. Each one is unique and varies greatly from the others. Our grade teachers are to be complimented for such fine exhibits.

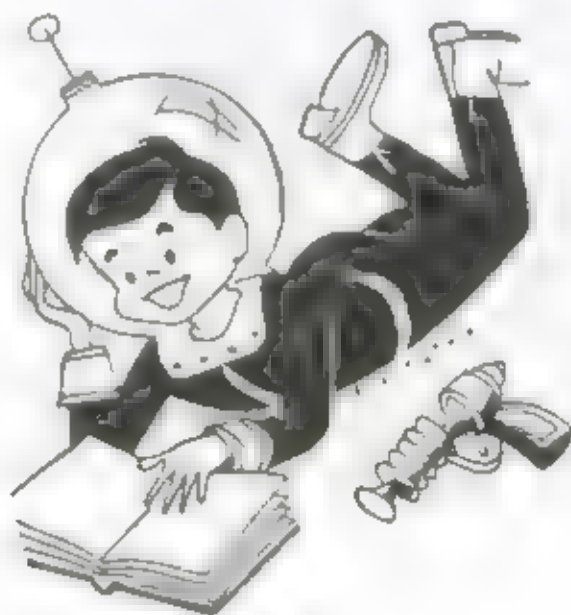

This crew of second grade students have tidied the room and appear ready for recess or home.

Teachers always have work to keep all students busy (well, almost all students).

The sixth grade appears to have mastered the art of concentration needed for individual study.

In music classes, students sing songs including folk tunes which embellish their social studies. They also have rhythm and movement activities and listening lessons in music appreciation.

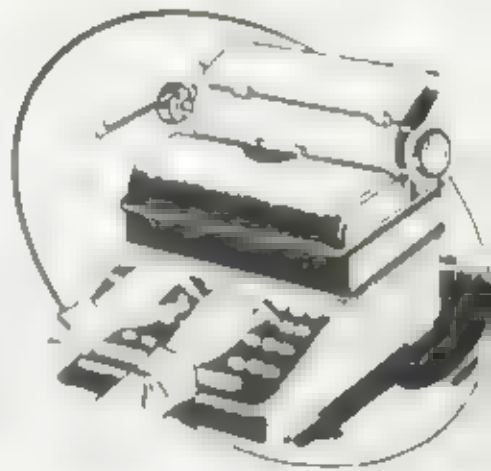

Mrs. Compton's Algebra II class seems to be putting on a good "studying" act for the camera. NO CLASS EVER STUDIES THIS HARD.

The Typing II class is taking advantage of the fine commercial equipment available at CHS.

One of the newer courses at CHS is the Family Life Education course under the direction of Mrs. Bieschke.

The Vocational Agriculture class is seen here checking the newspaper for current prices. Mr. Wright insists on their being well-informed.

Mr. Gardner's speech class appears hard at work while Mr. Mercer's history students take advantage of the visual aids.

Our school recently purchased this analytical balance to make our chemistry department one of the finest around.

CARTHAGE HIGH SCHOOL CHORUS

The chorus, under the direction of Sue Ann Land, produced the musical part of the convocations at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter for the school. The organization presented part of a Christmas Program, a Sacred Concert, and a Spring Program.

They also participated with other high school choruses in the County Music Festival and the District Choral Festival.

A few members also participated in the Solo and Ensemble Contest at Ball State.

CARTHAGE HIGH SCHOOL BAND

Carthage Band, directed by Bob Edwards, was the host band at the Carthage Fall Festival. In October, the group participated in the Band Day at Purdue and the Marching contest at Southport.

The concert band was part of the Sacred Concert and the Christmas Program. They participated in the County Music Festival and presented a Spring Concert. Several members participated in the Solo and Ensemble Contest and did a fine job.

The Band put on some very good half-time shows at the basketball games. Their biggest show entitled "Election Year of 1968" was presented at the New Salem game. Carthage also presented colors at the Rush County Tourney.

Phil Campbell, a senior, has been the drum major for three years. He has worked hard and done much for the success of our band.

Rhonda Reddick, treasurer, Warren Nigh, president, and Lorinda Mlekush, secretary, were the band officers this year. They mastered their duties and aided the efficiency of the band greatly.

Kathy Smith and Phil Campbell earned these varsity sweaters by being playing members for at least four years of high school.

The majorettes and color guards led the band through many performances and contests, including Mary Patton, Rhonda Reddick, Ann French, Becky Smith, Judy Zimmerman, Kathy Smith. Finishing: Linda Coppen, Lorinda Mlekush.

GIRLS' 4-H CLUB

Since Carthage has only one girls' 4-H club, they range in age from 4th graders to seniors. One big advantage of this is that the young girls can be instructed by the older ones. This helps both age groups in developing mind and spirit, one of the most important aims of 4-H clubs.

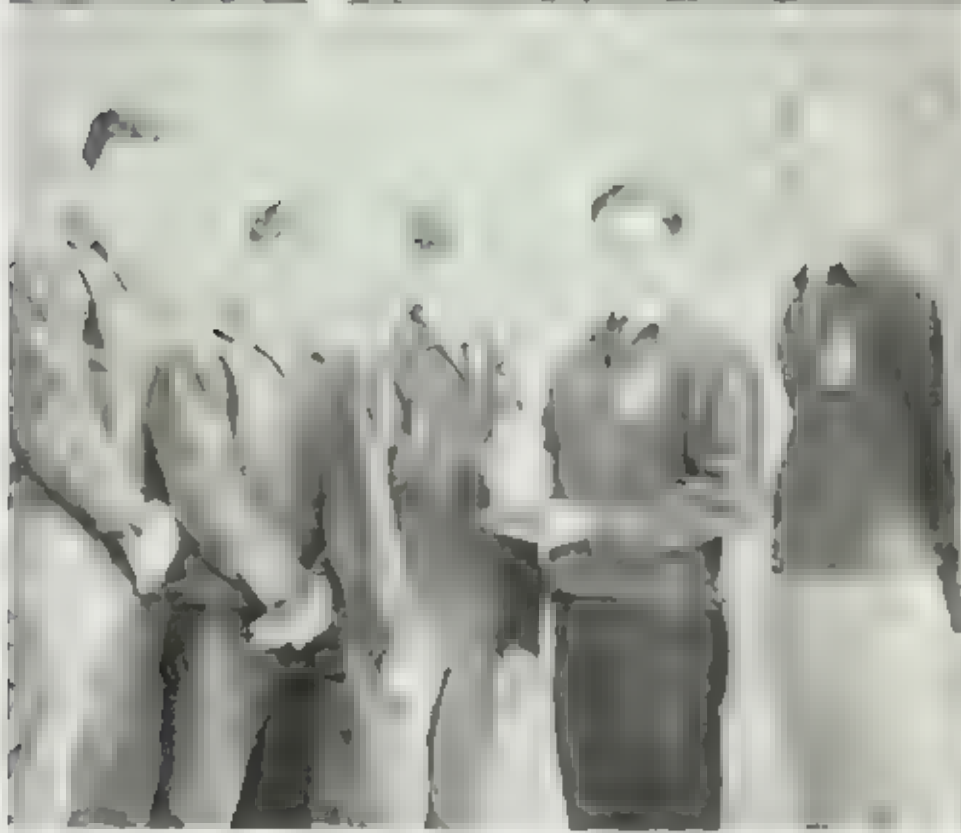

BOYS' JR. 4-H CLUB

These boys, in grades four through eight, have a close relationship with their leader. This builds personal character and stamina to stay with a job until finished.

BOYS' SR. 4-H CLUB

"To Make
The Best Better"

FFA Judging Contest winners: Earle Barry, Marty Matlock, John Spence, & Jim Campbell as the County Dairy Judging Team. Kim Lafuse won the individual County Dairy and Livestock Contest.

Jr. Leaders: A Jr. leader assists the 4-H leader in any way he can. In doing so, he teaches younger 4-H members and develops his own leadership.

ELEMENTARY INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC GROUPS

The training groups which feed into any varsity organization are important. To prepare for high school band, a student joins the flute-ophone class in the fourth grade. The following summer he selects an instrument and starts lessons. By fall he enters the beginning band composed of fifth grade students. The next preparatory step is the junior band, this year made up of sixth and seventh grade students.

SPRING OPERETTAS

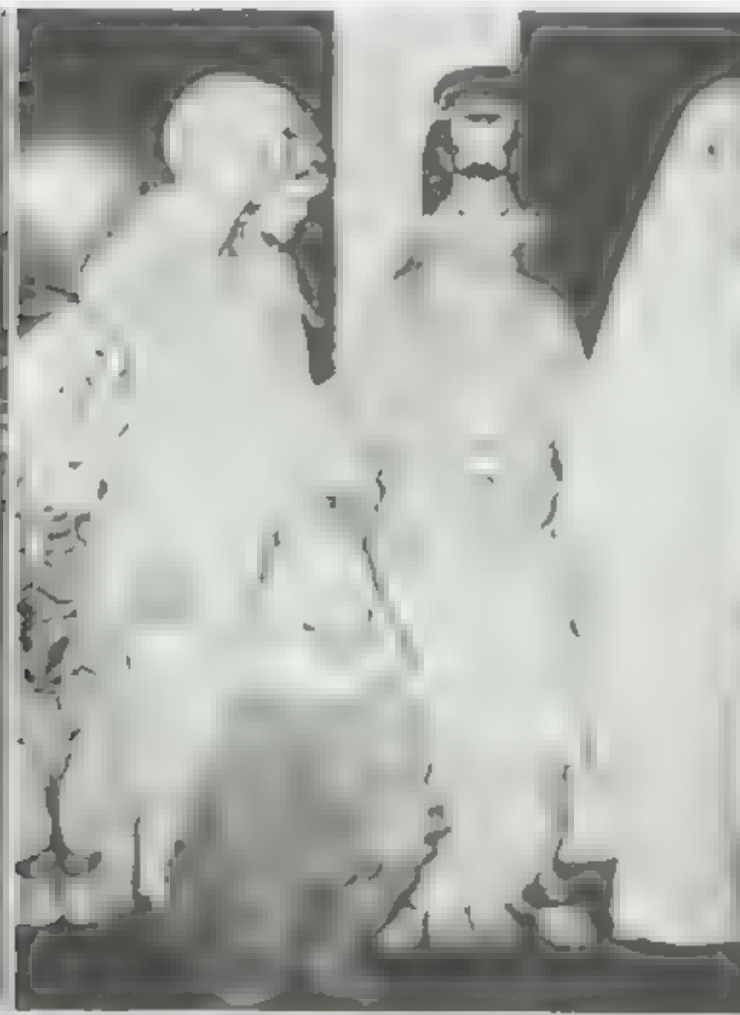

For the spring show this year, the elementary school presented three short operettas. In the top picture, the boys and girls are looking at the scripts after hearing they had speaking parts. The fifth and sixth grades presented "Betsy Goes Mining" and the third and fourth grades did "New Shoes."

"Peter Rabbit" was the third operetta of the program. The rhythm band consisting of 50 first grade students played the overture. The second grade members were the rabbits, Farmer McGregory, trees, flowers, and carrots.

The picture above is the traveling trophy that is presented to the championship basketball team of the East Central Conference each year. This year the Carthage Raiders topped the championship with a 6-1 mark. This was the first year in Carthage history that the Raiders were able to put together a combination to win this E.C.C. award. The Raiders' last conference game against Milroy was the decisive factor in which they defeated the host Cardinals by a score of 82-75.

The picture above is composed of the trophies that the athletes of the 1967-1968 senior class has helped accumulate for Carthage High School. There is a total of eleven trophies in all; nine of which are for basketball and the remaining two for volleyball. They are on the top row, left to right: 1964 Arlington Jr. High Basketball Tourney Runner-Up, 1967-1968 ECC Volleyball Champs, 1964 Jr. High Basketball Tourney Runner-Up, 1967-1968 Rush County Basketball Tourney Champs, 1967 Rush County Basketball Tourney Champs, 1964 Jr. High North District Basketball Runner-Up, 1965 B-team Basketball County Runner-Up, Second Row, left to right: 1966-1967 ECC Volleyball Champs, 1965-1966 Sectional Basketball Runner-Up, 1967-1968 ECC Basketball Champs, 1964-1965 ECC Freshman Basketball Tourney Champs.

THE FOUNDATION IS Laid;
THE STRUCTURE IS OURS TO BUILD

1968 GRADUATION

After thirteen years of school work at Carthage, the big weekend finally arrived and quickly sped away. Both the Baccalaureate and Commencement services were held in the gymnasium on May 19 and 20 respectively. The class colors were used behind the platform where a blue crepe paper backdrop emblazoned silver letters which spelled the class motto - "The foundation is laid; the structure is ours to build." During both ceremonies, each girl graduate carried a red rose, the class flower.

At Baccalaureate, Rev. Darrel Dennis of the Carthage Nazarene Church addressed the graduates on "Changing Times with an Unchanging Christ." The following night at Commencement Douglas A. Dickey, Campus Minister of Purdue University, spoke on the subject "The Challenge to Create Character."

PROPHECY

April 1, 1968, the last day of the qualifying rounds of the Masters Golf Tourney in Augusta, Georgia, we find Mr. Eugene Gardner, a retired high school teacher and the sponsor of the 1968 graduating class of Carthage High School, trying to make his first appearance on the P.G.A. Golf Tour. However, Mr. Gardner has missed by one stroke the needed score to qualify for the tourney. Rather disgustedly, he decides to travel to Atlanta to the ball park to see the Atlanta Braves vs. the New York Mets in a double-header.

While waiting in his box seat next to the dugout, Mr. Gardner enjoys hearing the University Band perform under the direction of Philip Campbell. Phil is conducting the band in accompanying Mrs. Sue Ann Land who is singing the National Anthem.

After the performance of the band, he sees a television interview taking place. Mike Marlock and David Whitfield are interviewing Kim Latuse, who is the pitcher for the New York Mets. On listening to the interview, Mr. Gardner finds out that Kim's future pitching career is in doubt because of his arthritic arm, and he is considering a coaching career at some university.

At the end of the interview, Mr. Gardner calls attention to Mike and Dave and enjoys a short conversation. He is told that the two are opening their first season as NBC news commentators.

After an exhausting day at the ball park, Dave and Mike decide to take Mr. Gardner out to dinner. While eating, Mr. Gardner unfortunately chaps one of his teeth on a pork chop bone and decides to go to a dentist immediately.

At the dental clinic he is greeted by Miss Shirley Deboard and, due to educational ties, is admitted without an appointment to see James Edwards, Orthodontist.

While Jim is filing down Mr. Gardner's bicuspid, he tells Mr. Gardner that the new wing on the clinic is being designed and constructed by the successful T&T architectural firm headed by draftsmen Tom Pearson and Tom Stevens. Deryl Souders is the chief construction manager.

On his way out of the dentist's office, Mr. Gardner meets Linda Copple who is waiting to have her teeth examined and cleaned by Jan. After chatting shortly, Mr. Gardner decides to find a hotel and rest for the night.

While walking down the street, Mr. Gardner meets John Gorman, a factory worker who is on his way to lose his weekly earnings at Big Al's Casino. Having been told that Alva Porter was the owner of the casino, Mr. Gardner decided to go try his luck.

Upon entering the casino, Mr. Gardner finds Alva overseeing the big poker game headed by his co-partner (the chief card shark of Southeastern United States) Mr. Malcolm McClurg.

Recognizing Mr. Gardner immediately, Mike decides to let Mr. Gardner win a few hands. After winning back enough money to replace the money he lost as entrance fee in the golf tourney, Mr. Gardner decides to go to the hotel to retire for the night.

The next morning on his way to Carthage, he passes a large successful tobacco farm under the ownership of Earle Barry.

After passing the tobacco farm, Mr. Gardner decides to save time by taking an interstate highway home. He is traveling along when he glances in the rear view mirror and sees a red light flashing. Being the law-abiding citizen he is, he immediately pulls over to the side of the highway to find out what the problem is.

As the state policeman approaches the car, Mr. Gardner recognizes him as being Lynn Ray. Lynn informed Mr. Gardner that he was going 25 m.p.h. in a minimum speed zone of 40 m.p.h. After Mr. Gardner reminds Lynn of their educational ties and tells him he will not do it again, Lynn (being the strictest law officer in the South) still decides to give him a ticket. Upon receiving his ticket, Mr. Gardner sadly returns to Atlanta to pay his fine.

At the courthouse he notices a group of students protesting about receiving their free but painful tuberculin tests from Janet Mummert and Ramona Gorman, head nurses at the Atlanta Memorial Hospital.

In observing the students carefully, he sees Kathy Smith and Becky McCorkle, their supervising teachers, trying to quiet them down.

In leaving the courthouse Mr. Gardner is blinded momentarily by the glare from the shiny new yellow school bus owned and operated by Foster "Wayne" Wilson. Foster had transported the students to get their TB shots.

In talking with Foster, Mr. Gardner realizes he has seen all the students in the class of 1968 except Judy Zimmerman and Rhonda Reddick.

Foster informs him that they own a beauty salon just around the corner. Mr. Gardner decides to make his trip complete by paying them a visit.

While with Judy and Rhonda he is persuaded to go to the Indianapolis 500 Festival Golf Tournament to see if his luck has improved any.

With high spirits, he then polished up his golf clubs and headed for Indianapolis.

CLASS WILLS

I, Earl Barry, being of sound mind and weak body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: I leave my ability to skip school several times a year without being caught to anyone who thinks he has the brains to figure out how to do it. I leave my ability to pose for a really good picture to anyone who thinks he might be able to get it published in PLAYBOY.

I, Philip Dale Campbell, being of very talented mind and super-duper body do hereby will and bequeath the following: I leave my seat in chorus as lead tenor to the other boys to fight over. (Sorry about that, guys.) I leave my little blond-fanner's to W. Arnold to Bubbles and Porky. Good luck, boys, and my sympathy to all three of you.

I, Linda Leigh Copple, being of superior mind and under-nourished body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: I leave to Mr. Purtee my nickname "Squatty", because he needs a shorter name. To my little brother Butch I leave my seat in study hall with the hopes that he will make better use of it than I did.

I, Shirley Deeward, being of superior mind and blank body do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Pam French, I leave my ability to know which guy I really like to date. To anyone who enjoys helping others and getting to know two very nice ladies, plus having a lot of fun, I leave my position as Library Assistant.

I, Jim Edwards, being of notorious mind and unsightly body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Randy Nigh, I give my smile to use after he wears his out. My ability to slide into second base instead of the shower room, I leave to Chuck Henley.

I, John L. Cornial, being of sound mind and under-nourished body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Janet Willey, I leave my ability to park around Carnegie with her boy friend and not get caught. To Paulette Lamb, I leave my ability to keep cool in time of crisis concerning love triangles. Being calm and collected has more appeal than hallway fighting.

I, Ramona Cornial, being of a hairy mind and a mechanical body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Becky Smith I leave my ability to stay on the road, not in a plowed field, when I'm frustrated. To Rick Hampton I leave my government book in hopes that he will put it to some kind of use, if nothing else but as a pillow.

I, Tim Latus, being of a coherent mind and incoordinated body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To "Boss" Nigh, I will my ability to stand and talk to girls without kicking out windows. To Mr. Purtee, I will 25 ml of 6N HNO₃ in hopes he will "drink and be merry."

I, Mike Marick, being of unteachable mind and malnourished, overworked, and tired body, do will and give away the following: To Mr. Mercer I leave a Megaphone and Everett Dirksen's voice. To Dan Purtee I leave a basketball so that he can practice every night and become almost as good as he thinks he is.

I, Becky McCormick, being of short mind and long body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Mary Patton, (or any other promising girl athlete), I will my offer to play basketball with the Arkansas Redheads! To Mr. Smith I will my great singing ability so his future office secretaries won't have to suffer as much as I did.

I, Malcolm Wayne McClurg being of a somewhat deteriorated physical condition but in complete control of my mental faculties, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Mr. Smith, I will my soft spoken voice to prevent him from startling any student it might be necessary to summons to his office. To Dan Purtee, I leave my dead-eye and steady hand, which won't improve his teaching but might help his marksmanship.

I, Janet Mummert, being of unstable mind and questionable body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To anyone who has trouble staying awake, I will my insomnia: it comes in handy for late dates, and also for Senior trips. I leave to Mr. Purtee, my fantastic arm with a ballpoint pen, in hopes that he can defend himself.

I, Tom Pearson, being of intellectual mind and super-human body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To my sweet neighbor Mary (Blues) Patton, I will my ability to arrive at school three minutes after the bell rings and get into class without having to get a pass or making up time after school. To my sweet, timid, quiet, little brother Cy, I leave my place in sports in hopes that he will get as much enjoyment and pleasure in participating in them as I did and accomplish more than I did.

I, Alva Porter, being of nasty mind and overworked body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To my cousin Lorinda, I will my desk in government in hopes that she can enjoy as many hours in dreamland there as I did. To Mr. Gardner I will two cases of "Campez." Poor guy won't know what to do next year without us around to help keep things in order.

I, Lynn Ray, being of sound mind and lazy body do hereby will and bequeath the following: My geometry book to anyone that would rather listen to corny jokes than hear the Chief explain geometry problems. I leave my Family Life Education Book to my brother, so he will be able to hear the life story of Mrs. Bieschke first hand at least 10 times.

I, Rhonda Reddick, being of confused mind and dilapidated body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Mr. Mercer my spelling book so he and Bradley can learn to spell together. To Pam French my ability to receive the Crisco Trophy two years in a row.

I, Kathy Ree Smith, being "about half" in mind and "a silly millimeter longer" in body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Cathy Wright I will my position as varsity cheerleader in hopes that she will have as much fun and be as proud as I have been. To Mr. Weber I will my ability to drive for three years with no accidents. Good luck and buckle up!!

I, Deryl (alias Bosco) Souder, being of simple mind and over-powering body, do will and bequeath the following: To Jim Campbell and Dave Mummert, my "little black book," hoping they can get into half as much trouble with it as I have. Don't fight over it. To Tom Pitts my ability to skip classes to operate the projector and not get caught well, almost not get caught.

I, Thomas Allen Stevens, being of false mind and phony body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Mike Lynch I leave my ability to get a deep, dark tan during those summer months. To Rick Heim I give my straight hair, it sure beats using curl-free.

I, Dave Whithole, being of sexy mind and desirable body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Dale Copple, the more comfortable coach's chair so that he may sit in it and order his shadow to do all the work that student managers are supposed to do. My seat in the student council to anyone who likes to get out of classes for fifteen or twenty minutes to hear Mr. Smith say "one thinks" forty-eleven times.

I, Foster Wayne Wilson, being of mediocre mind and undefinable body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: My seat in Senior literature to anyone who likes stories even Shakespeare couldn't understand. To Mrs. Bieschke my own special recipe for "Twilight Zone" soup.

I, Jay Zimmerman, being of feeble mind and undernourished body, do hereby will and bequeath the following: To Cindy Stewart, my place as madamette all four years of high school, I hope you have as much fun as I did. To Bob Crizzell, I leave all my books in hopes he will use them more than I did.

1968 PROM

"Blue Hawaii" was the theme for the 1968 Junior-Senior Prom held May 11, at the Rushville Elks Club. Several members of both classes and their guests enjoyed the dance in the ballroom which the Juniors had cleverly decorated with fish nets, masks, paper fruit, and other things. The main attraction was the little grass shack which housed the punch and cookies. All guests were greeted at the door and received a lei before taking a seat at a candle-lit table.

The band for the evening was a group of live ones from Indianapolis called the "Bristols." They played a variety of music, and different band members sang to the band's accompaniment. At one point in the evening, one Bristol got all the young dancers on the floor for a new circle dance.

Before...

IN MEMORY OF

PFC Michael David Geise, a 1966 graduate of Carthage High School.

Mike gave his life in Vietnam on March 4, 1968, after joining the Army in August, 1967. A friend to all who knew him, Mike will remain a cherished memory in our hearts for many years to come.

Kimberly Sue Baker, a fifth grade student at Carthage School.

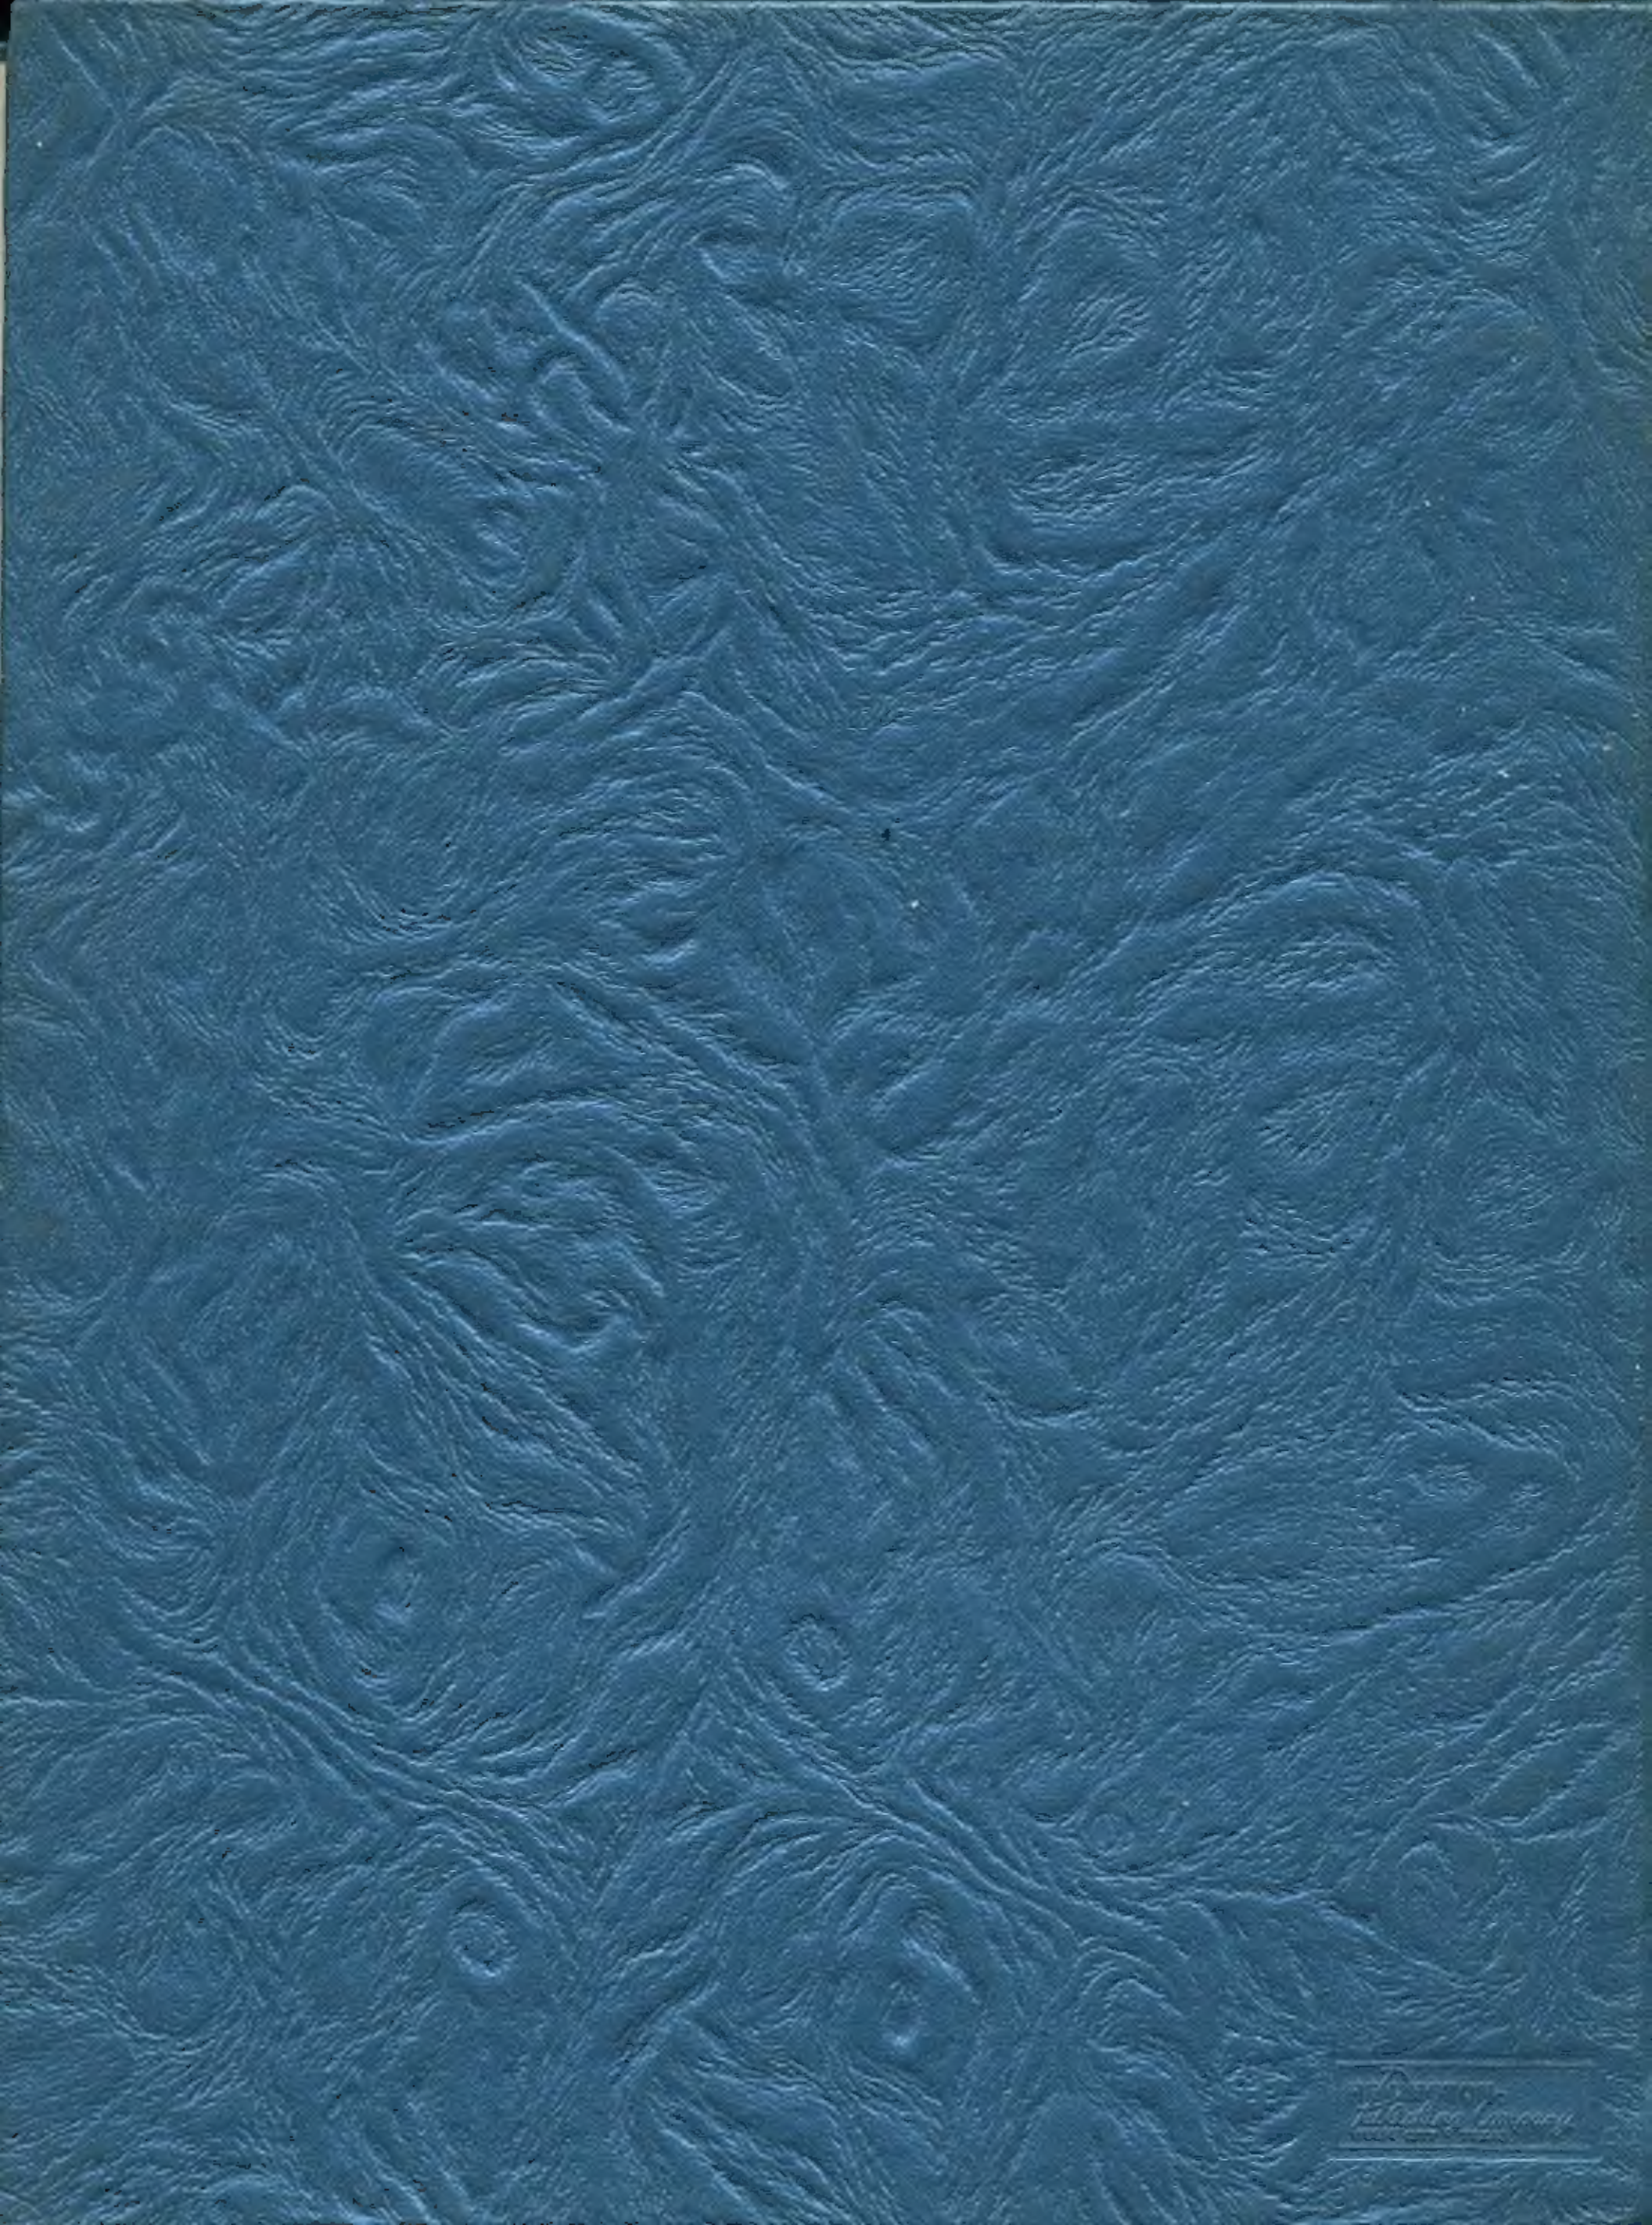

Kim's young life was taken tragically on October 24, 1967, in a fire which destroyed her home. Although she was with us less than two months, her smile and pleasing personality are a lasting memory for all her friends.
